About Mattie's Foundation...

Mattie J.T. Stepanek envisioned a world at peace. Born with a life-threatening neuromuscular disease, Mattie nonetheless exemplified his personal philosophy that motivated him to cope with and celebrate life:
"Remember to play after every storm."

Mattie shared hope through his 'Heartsongs' poetry, and collaborated with Former President Jimmy Carter on an essay book, Just Peace. He discussed peace on Oprah, Larry King Live, and Good Morning America, and enjoyed visiting with neighbors, schools, and businesses in his Rockville, Maryland King Farm Community. Mattie died just before his fourteenth birthday in 2004. He wanted to be remembered as
"a poet, a peacemaker, and a philosopher who played."

The Mattie J. T. Stepanek King Farm Foundation is a non-profit organization established to continue spreading Mattie's message of hope and peace through ongoing peace programs and educational contests in schools and communities. The 'Champion' and 'Messenger' Sponsorship Opportunities listed here support aspects of Mattie's Park, and make his books available to schools and families.

About Mattie's Park...

The Mattie J.T. Stepanek Park at King Farm, in Rockville will be a place for people to gather for recreation and relaxation amid playgrounds, ball fields, a dog park, jogging paths, and lots of green space. What makes this 26 acre park so unique is how Mattie's message of hope and peace will be commemorated. Plans include a life-size statue of Mattie with his service dog, Micah, at a chess table. A nearby plaque will bear a quote from his newest book:

*"Peace is possible. It can begin simply,
over a game of chess and a cup of tea."*

*Artist draft of a possible look for the 'Mattie statue.'
